How to Request a Business Loan - An Outline for a Business Financing Proposal

The following is intended to serve as a guide for the necessary information your financial institution needs to help make a decision on your business loan request. Providing this information to your financial institution at the time you request the loan will speed the processing of your loan. More importantly, it gives you the opportunity to systematically analyze the future plans for your business, enabling you to make the best case possible for the loan you seek.

Proposal Summary. In a few sentences, describe the company, its product or service, the amount of the loan you are requesting, how the funds will be used, and the equity which you will be putting into the business.

Description of Business. Describe the products or services, applications, and markets of your business. Include pictures and advertising brochures. Tell whether you are a manufacturer, distributor or retailer. If a new business, describe the planned business form (proprietorship, partnership or corporation) and how you will operate it. For an existing business, give a brief history of the company.

Goals for the Business. Describe the direction you see the business going over the next two to three years. Identify any new products. Detail your goals for quality, profits, employee relations, number of customers, type of customer, etc. List separately the key dates included in your goals- such as the order, receipt and operating dates for new equipment, buildings, systems, etc. Describe your marketing and sales plans.

Management and Personnel. List the key people in the organization. Describe the individual capabilities and experience that will contribute to the success of the business.

Financial Data. For an existing business, provide the balance sheet and income statement for the past two to three years, plus the current (within 60 days) financial statements. Provide a monthly budget with two or three scenarios (best, worst, realistic) of your sales, expenses and cash flow for the year after you receive the loan. Also, it would be helpful to provide an estimate of the succeeding one or two years. List any assumptions on which your forecasts are based. Include an aging of accounts payable, the details of any other business debts and credit references.

Use of Loan Funds. Tell what you will be using funds for, when major loan expenditures will be made, and the reasons for the expenditures. Estimate the portions of the funds required for machinery and equipment, buildings, accounts receivable increase, additional inventory, etc. Supply a copy of the quotations on which you based the estimate for buildings, machinery and equipment.

Collateral. List business or personal assets that will be available to collateralize the loan. Attach available appraisals of assets such as machinery, buildings and land. Include an aged listing of accounts receivable. Provide an estimate of forced liquidations (distressed) value of assets.

Equity. Show any personally owned assets or cash you will be putting into the business. If you will be personally borrowing equity, list the lenders, the terms of repayment and include any commitment letters.
